11 - 15 september 2023 | Prague

In 2023, AquaConSoil will take place in the beautiful city of Prague, Czech Republic and will be hosted by the Czech University of Life Sciences.

We are delighted to finally meet all of you in person again after four years, and we can't think of a better place than Prague. It is the first time AquaConSoil will settle down in Eastern Europe. It is also the first time we will host AquaConSoil at a University Campus.

The city of Prague has a rich history and this beautiful city has many landmarks and other attractions such as the old history centre, the Charles Bridge and Prague Castle.

The Czech University of Life Sciences is one of the leading European institutions in the field of life sciences. The campus is recently renovated, has many green areas with benches and other meeting places dispersed over the area. The soft weather in September will give tremendous opportunities for endless walks and talks.

The faculty of Life Sciences offers us an excellent space for sessions and a large, spacious and light location for the exhibition

What is AquaConSoil?

AquaConSoil is a bi yearly event where scientists, policy- and decisionmakers and industry representatives gather to learn, share and engage on sustainable use and management of soil, sediment and water resources.

Nowadays AquaConSoil has built a professional platform of well-established scientists, thought leaders, policymakers and experts which expands every edition with new young professionals.
